Let's Start!

A Gala Event at the office.

Learning Outcome

Describe the reasons or results of events or actions in spoken or written texts, in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Have you tried to organize an event before? What kind?
- Are you good at small talk? Do you like to mingle at parties? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can discuss reasons and results of an event or action related to work and jobs.
- I can express willingness or intention to do something in work and job issues.
- I can exchange complex professional information related to work and job issues.

Let's Explore!

A lot is riding on this gala event. It needs to go smoothly.

* A "gala" is a celebration.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Adam: As a result of everything going well, is it time to mingle?
- Denise: Not yet. Ok. Gang. Everything looks like it is running smoothly. So this is how it is going to play out. First, we do a sweep to make sure everything is set up properly. Therefore, there are no surprises. Second, make sure we have enough food and drink for everyone. Consequently, everyone is happy. After that, shepherd Marisa. Make her feel comfortable. I'll get up and say a few words so that everyone is up to speed and then we'll bring Marisa up to say a few words. Finally, we mingle and keep guests happy. Any questions? Ok. Go to work.
- Kristi: Adam, we need more brochures so that we can pass them out to the guests.
- Adam: I'll take care of it. Would you like me to copy out 20 or 50?
- Kristi: Copy 50 just in case we have unexpected guests.
- Denise: Kristi, Marisa is here. Can you get a glass of wine for her and help her with anything she needs since she is our guest of honor. She will need to be taken care of. Where is Adam?
- Kristi: He is copying brochures. Hi Marisa, you look wonderful.
- Marisa: Thank you!
- Kristi: So, in a little while, Denise is getting up and saying a few words in about five minutes and as you are the star of the show, we'll need you to say a few words when you are ready.
- Marisa: I'm so excited because this is all so new to me. I wish my father were here. He'd always help me with my writing.
- Kristi: Would you like a glass of wine?
- Marisa: Do you have anything stronger? I am very nervous. Consequently, I may need something a little stronger.
- Kristi: I'll get it for you.

Let's Practice!

The gang hopes that this will go smoothly at the gala.

Instructions: Read the sentences. Circle the linking words that you use in a result clause.

- As a result of everything going well, is it time to mingle?
- First, we do a sweep to make sure everything is set up properly. Therefore, there are no surprises.
- Second, make sure we have enough food and drink for everyone. Consequently, everyone will be happy.
- I am very nervous, so I may need something a little stronger.

Let's Practice!

Denise has high expectations.

Learning Points

Result Clauses

You use linking words when you want to introduce clauses that express results. Linking words help you connect the ideas in a sentence.

A common linking phrase that you use in result clauses is so. So introduces the result of something.

For example:

I am very nervous. So, I may need something a little stronger.

You can use as a result to introduce a result.

For example:

As a result of them winning the lottery, they took us to Barbados.*

You use therefore and consequently at the beginning of sentences to introduce a result.

For example:

First, the manager verifies that everyone has had their police check. Therefore, we won't have to deal with any surprises.

Second, make sure we have enough food and drink for everyone. Consequently, everyone will be happy.

Examples:

- As a result of everything going well, is it time to mingle?*
- First, we do a sweep to make sure everything is set up properly. Therefore, there are no surprises.

Learning Points

Reason Clauses

When you want to refer to the reason for something, you can use reason clauses introduced by a linking word.

Some common linking words you use in reason clauses are:
because, since, as, and so.

Because

When you use because to introduce a reason, you use it with a subject and a verb.

For example:

*I'm really thrilled to be here because I have always dreamed of being a filmmaker.

Since/As

Since and as are more informal, and they are followed by a subject and a verb.

For example:

As you are the director of the movie, you'll be expected to communicate your vision to the producers.*

*Provide the cast with lots of healthy food since they will be working hard all day without many breaks.

You can use just in case as a linking phrase. It means "in the case that".

For example:

*Prepare 50 extra seats just in case some unexpected guests arrive.

Examples:

- I'm so excited because this is all so new to me.
- Help her with anything she needs since she is the guest of honor.
- As you are the star of the show, we'll need you to say a few words.
- Copy 100 just in case we have unexpected guests.
